C. A. OWENS NAMED IN DIVORCE ACTION

Wife Charges Gross Neglect and Extreme Cruelty in Petition.

Clifford A. Owens, prominent Marion manufacturer, is named defendant in a divorce action filed in common pleas court at noon today by Mrs. Mabel Chapman Owens.

An equitable share of his property and alimony is sought in the petition. Judge George B. Scofield today issued a temporary injunction restraining Owens and other defendants from disposing of any of his property while the case is pending.

Mrs. Owens asks that a receiver be appointed to take charge of all his interests and income until further order of the court.

Charges Neglect, Cruelty
Her plea for divorce is based on charges of gross neglect, extreme cruelty, riotous living and other allegations. She asserts he left their home, has refused to furnish her means of subsistence, has ordered store owners to extend her no credit, ordered the telephone disconnected from her residence, and refused to furnish her with the necessities of life, all in an alleged attempt to force her to agree to a property settlement.

During all their married life he has abused her, she maintains. She charges he has humiliated her without cause.

Mrs. Owens alleges that her husband has several months ago, "it was a case of love at first sight," she is quoted as saying. "We knew that we were in love with each other the moment we met. Last Saturday we decided not to put off the marriage any longer and went to West Chester, Pa. to be married."

The marriage was performed in the office of Justice of the Peace C. Newbold Watson. Watson and Miss Margaret Campbell who accompanied them were witnesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Owens are living at the Royal Palm Court apartments in West Philadelphia. They plan to leave this weekend for a honeymoon in West Hampton, Long Island.

Mrs. Black is one of four daughters of Mr. Dunning. She has made her home in Philadelphia. Although Mr. Black's father is head of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, the bridegroom is associated with the Philadelphia office of the Standard Oil Co. of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Dunning is associated with the sales department of the Alloy Cast Steel Co. here as sales manager.

Miss Anne Elizabeth Dunning, daughter of William T. Dunning of 204 south High street, and Robert MacCullough Black of Philadelphia, son of Charles G. Black, president and a member of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, were married Saturday at West Chester, Pa. The marriage was made known late yesterday.

Mrs. Black said that she met her husband several months ago. "It was a case of love at first sight," she is quoted as saying. "We knew that we were in love with each other the moment we met. Last Saturday we decided not to put off the marriage any longer and went to West Chester, Pa. to be married."

NEED MORE JARS TO AID IN CANNING

Mrs. Uhl Makes Plan To Help Unemployed Save Garden Stuff.

Two weeks of industrious canning, and with the third week opening Thursday, the unemployed are facing the need of jars for their vegetables. Mrs. Louis Uhl, home economics chairman of the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs which is sponsoring the community canning kitchens each Thursday has asked the women of Marion to do their bit by giving their surplus glass canning jars to the unemployed.

The Silver street school, Fifth Memorial Baptist church and St. Mary's Parochial school kitchens will be open Thursday at 9 a. m. The lack of glass jars is the only drawback to the present successful plan of helping the unemployed tide themselves over the winter. Hundreds of families

BLAMES BOY SLAYER'S PARENTS

Amid a silence electric in its intensity, Judge Joseph Sabath in a Chicago court sentenced 15-year-old Varner Corry to serve 18 years in Joliet penitentiary for the murder of Policeman Edward Smith, whom the boy shot in a school swimming pool room. In sentencing the boy the judge said: "In careful study of the record... we find that your parents have both utterly failed in their responsibility as a father and mother and citizens in their lack of interest and proper personal supervision over you. The court believes that they have thereby contributed to the commission of this crime. Varner Corry is shown here with his parents."

STEEL STOCK DROPS ON WORLD MARKETS

London, New York Exchanges Record Slumps Following Dividend Cut.

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 29.—United States steel common stock dropped $3.12 to a price of $87.25 at the opening of the stock market today, reflecting reduction in the annual dividend rate to $4 from $7, announced after the close of the market yesterday. The entire market was weak, although opening blocks were mostly of moderate size.

Wall street was distinctly disappointed in the steel corporation earnings statement, which, exclusive of special income derived largely from the sale of a utility subsidiary, showed about six cents a share for the preferred stock as the return from operations only during the second quarter. It was the poorest report in recent years.

The market had been prepared for a cut in the dividend, although expectations generally were that the rate would be revised to a $5 instead of a $4 annual basis.

Nothing was learned from the directors as to their attitude toward wage cuts, but it was assumed the corporation's policy of retrenchment, emphasized, not only by the dividend slash but in the pay cuts applied to all officers and salaried employees, did not immediately include a lower wage scales for the mill workers.

By United Press.
LONDON, July 29.—United States steel common stock dropped five points on opening quotations on the London exchange as result of the dividend action and salary reduction recommendation of directors yesterday.

SCOUTS GET AWARDS AT CAMP SESSION

Honors Given at Last Camp-fire of Second Period.

The closing campfire of the second period of scout camp John A. Owens was held last night at the camp with awards of the court of honor made to several scouts. Frank D. Glosser, president of the Harding area, made the awards to the scouts. Those receiving the honors were Bud Sheckler, Troop 23 of Bucyrus, second class; David Murray, Troop 10 of Marion, wood carving merit badge; and Robert Glosser, Troop 4 of Marion, life scout badge and cooking merit badge. The program at the campfire was in charge of the campers, with contests, stunts, and songs being presented. The second period ends this afternoon and the third and last period of the summer's camping for scouts begins Thursday morning and continues until Wednesday, Aug. 5.

Edward McComb, Red Cross examiner and waterfront director at the camp, made awards of the junior Red Cross life saving badges and other honors to various campers who had earned them during the period this noon at the dining lodge of the camp. Scouts who had passed the tests and received the life-saving awards were Jerry Brown of Troop 5, Roger Morgan of Troop 6, David Murray of Troop 10, and Bud Sheckler of Troop 23 of Bucyrus. William Smith received the Red Cross swimmer's badge from McComb, and Delmar Wilcox was awarded the beginner's badge of the Red Cross. Because of the fact that most of the boys have been at camp for one period or more, there are few of the campers that have not learned to swim from the instruction and lessons given. During the present period, there was not a single camper unable to swim.

EXPLOSION STARTS FIRE

Damage estimated at $10 was done to the wall paper and woodwork in the kitchen at the home of Fremont Huntsman of 905 north State street when a coal oil stove exploded shortly after 10 a. m. today. ## The Entire State Awaited the Result

VIOLENT storms disorganized the communications of a midwest state on the night of the most bitterly contested Senatorial election in its history. The vote was unusually close and only a tabulation of every precinct's ballots could accurately determine the outcome. Facing terrific obstacles, with telephone and telegraph lines out of order, roads impassable and rain drenching the entire state, THE ASSOCIATED PRESS election returns staff worked throughout the night and the following day. Twenty hours after the polls closed, the last precinct had been reported. But the plurality for the incumbent Senator was so small that even a slight error in one of the 2,000 precincts might have altered the result. An immediate recount was necessary!

Through another night, the same staff kept at work. Tired election officials were routed from their beds to assist in checking reports. Early the next morning, the task was completed and the first totals verified. A few weeks later the official canvass confirmed the result.

THROUGH such painstaking and tireless efforts, THE ASSOCIATED PRESS serves the readers of member newspapers with reliable and unbiased reports of the day's news.

Milliners in Marion and every- where had a struggle this spring to sell their customers the "Wateau" model, the bunn flaring up in front and lined with flowers, but wait until they try the line about "Oh, how charming—the line are just suited to your face." One look in the mirror and 99 out of a 100 of the women will know that there isn't any line and that they don't look charming.
"Empress Eugenie's" are smart, oh, so smart, but they were never designed to make the wearer look pretty—stunning yes, with the right costume but never more beautiful. And it's more fun to go with some- one to try them on.

Must Be Swanky
One particular model was strict- ly Eugenie. Extremely shallow crown, with a slight upturn of brim at the back, and just enough brim in front to form the necessary "right-eye peak," the peak trimmed with two feathers crossed, one black and one white.
Everyone wanted to try one, and the laughs that went around the crowd weren't at all complimentary to any of the wearers. Some look- ed like flowers from old bouquets and two looked like jockeys in from a hard ride.
Men have always deplored the women's styles, but somehow, they may have a reason for it this win- ter, unless after the first shipment the extreme styles are modified be- fore the heavy fall and winter buy- ing begins.
Here's a tip though. If you can't wear the good old Eugenie, you'll look just as smart in the new Napoleonic tricorn.

MRS. NOYES TO BRING AUTOGIRO TO PORT

Famous Woman Flier To Be Here Friday with Strange Craft.

Air-minded citizens will be given their first demonstration of the practicability of the autogiro Fri- day when the first commercial autogiro, piloted by Mrs. Blanche Wilcox Noyes, lands at the Marion airport.

Arrangements for the appearance of the autogiro here have been completed. It was announced today by W. D. Brown, executive vice president of the chamber of com- merce.

Safety was the motive in the de- signing of this strange and novel craft and according to the Stand- ard Oil Co. of Ohio, sponsor of the tour of the ship over Ohio, it re- presents the last word in safety.

The autogiro has demonstrated its ability to safely fly at the speed of 20 miles an hour, and can even be brought to a momentary stop while in the air. It can land and take off on a large lawn. If its engine should die in mid-air, it settles safely back to earth.

Mrs. Noyes who will pilot the craft, was one of the participants in the 1929 "powder-puff" derby flying from California to the Na- tional Air races in Cleveland.
Standard oil officials have an- nounced the tour of the autogiro over Ohio is for the purpose of creating a greater interest in the development and safety of flying.

LOWER PRICE IS JUST ONE FACTOR IN THE NEW OLDSMOBILE'S GREATER VALUE. Added Equipment and New Fine-Car Features Make It a Better Car than Ever. Although lower price is an important factor in the new Oldsmobile's greater value, it is, nevertheless, a secondary factor. Added equipment and new fine-car features mean even more from an investment standpoint. For example, you are now offered an option of five wire or five demountable wood wheels at no extra charge. You are given the famous Synchro-Mesh non-clashing transmission and a new Quiet Second Gear—features heretofore found only in higher priced cars. You receive, too, the performance advantages of new and important engine features. Down-draft carburetion brings increased power—with higher speed, faster acceleration, and greater smoothness. It also assures quick starting. And a new carburetor-silencer contributes to quieter operation. These and other important new features represent extra value. For all are added to the tried and proved fundamentals of design which have won the praise of every Oldsmobile owner.

Daily Proverb—"Alms giving never made a man poor, nor robbery rich, nor prosperity wise."

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt says that "it is not enough to talk about being of good cheer." Sure not, Franklin! Fill 'em up again!

Washington announces that new contracts for public and semi-public works aggregating $49,247,328 were awarded last week. It's a light on the extent to which expenditures for construction have grown when such a sum as $49,000,000 can be "reverted to with the rather trite remark that 'every little helps' the unemployment situation."

On its trip to Europe ended Sunday, J. P. Morgan's Corsair crossed the Atlantic from Newport reef to the Needles, Isle of Wight, in seven days and seven hours, a record for vessels of her class, and the New York financier seems to be far more pleased over his yacht's performance than he would have been had he unloaded a big European bond issue or a lot of credulous American investors.

An exchange points out that four out of five of the South American presidents met by Mr. Hoover on his good will tour have lost their jobs during the last few months. What! Are they going to hold the President responsible for that as well as the business depression, unemployment, the drought, the failure to regain the Davis cup and the pests of grasshoppers?

The American Chemical society has issued a warning against the use of methanol—methyl alcohol—stating that animals have been killed by washing them in it. The warning might prove more effective were the result of internal application of the alcohol set out. Very little stuff with an alcoholic content is wasted on animals in this era of Volsteadism.

Ottawa reports that the early returns show that tourist traffic from the United States is greater by eighty-four per cent. than it was for the same period last year and has become a considerable factor in reducing Canadian unemployment. Colonel Woodcock's agents must be picking up in efficiency.

On the last four-day trip of the Leviathan to Halifax and return, the fog was so heavy that the United States liner was held off shore and could not replenish her liquor supply and, as she took but 600 guests aboard before sailing northward, her passengers were forced to drink the equivalent of home brew on the homeward trip. Here's a case where the fellows who "can drink it or let it alone" certainly are justified in figuring that they played in awfully hard luck.

Another Wickersham Report.
The Wickersham commission delivers another report into the hands of the public. The commission, long since disbanded, still retains a shadowy identity through its posthumous reports.

The latest one deals with "penal institutions, probation and parole." It condemns the nation's prison system with an array of evidence as startling to American's conscience as that which disturbed the nation's smug complacency recently when the commission disclosed that children were being maltreated in federal prisons.

One wonders, irrelevantly perhaps, what will become of the Wickersham commission's reports. What effect will they have on bettering the admittedly bad state of law and order in the United States?

The effect of the most important of the commission's reports, that dealing with the enforceability of prohibition, was negated at the outset by an inexcusable attempt to hide its purport. The real conclusion of the report, furthermore, stated little that Americans did not already know.

The commission has reported on a number of things since then, each report presenting valuable collections of figures and opinions that might be used for the common good of all. But will they? There is no provision to translate the commission's recommendations into action. Prison discipline is "traditional, antiquated, unintelligent and not infrequently cruel and inhuman," the latest report reads. The public knows that, has done very little about it, and probably doesn't care to do more and will not till long after the Wickersham commission is a cold phrase in a history book.

There is, however, a great deal to be said for the idea of grouping the opinions of distinguished citizens in reports prepared under government direction and containing stores of information collected at government expense. The Wickersham commission at least has given the people something to refer to for support of their beliefs, even if the recommendations do seem destined to lie forgotten in storage.

The Close-Up Craze.

Philosophers are well aware of the world's ability to absorb deprivation and disaster without being affected. From their detached viewpoints, events of seeming magnitude dwindle to trifling size. Things go on about as usual, so why worry? ask the philosophers.

It is the practice, currently, to magnify all news of finance and industry. A few years ago Wall Street, the stock market, closing prices, short-selling and the money patten that fills the air today meant nothing outside inner financial circles. Today, bootblacks, boot-makers and bootleggers pull long faces and describe, with all the intensity of real money moguls, the hiding "they" took in the market.

A slump in the market is a thing that saddens 50,000,000 hearts and darkens as many outlooks on the whole course of human progress.

James Truslow Adams, writing in the August issue of Harpers, gently objects to this silly concentration of "things," and kindly advises more attention to "relations." Isaac Newton, a distinguished contributor to human advancement, would be considered a "nut" by the practical men of today. Mr. Adams argues, because his interest was almost entirely in "relations." "Things" the closing prices of stocks, in the index of commodity prices, the 101 facts which fill the horizon of a practical man—would have meant little to him. He, like every truly great man, avoided a close-up way of looking at things.

Mr. Adams' advice to the United States is to encourage perspective. For instance, perspective would show certain master minds that the present depression—Mr. Adams calls it a panic—is far from the worst in the nation's history. As a matter of fact, equally unfavorable things happened during 1837, 1857, 1873, 1891, 1907 and 1921. One wonders, incidentally, if there may not be significance in the fact that no major depression ever was given the date of an even year.

The close-up mentalities in which the nation's "practical" men take such unreasonable pride simply aren't equipped to hold the present depression in its proper perspective—the perspective, that is, which would prevent the current financial episode from blotting out all other details of the world picture. Mr. Adams does not attempt to minimize the seriousness of the present situation, but merely would like to put the situation into some relation with the past.

In the days of "Coolidge prosperity" the close-up was a delightful scene in which Miss Prosperity's lips touched the eager ones of Mr. American Business. Today, the close-up is the scowl of Villain Depression. The close-up craze has the nation's common sense by the throat; but ten years from now no one will remember what it was all about.

Take-offs to cross the Atlantic have become so common that it's almost a news item when a day passes without at least one attempt being made, but when two planes take off from the same field within a few minutes of each other with European destinations as their goals, as two did Tuesday, it is somewhat exceptional.

Treasury Troubles.

If misery truly loves company, fiscal experts of the United States and Europe should be happy in abundant companionship. Budget situations of most European countries, as shown by available statistics, can be lumped together with the situation in the United States and described in common as "unfavorable."

Germany, the nation whose situation is causing the most alarm, closed its fiscal year with a deficit of $297,000,000, equal to more than thirteen per cent. of its total expenditures.

The United Kingdom, which anticipated a surplus, reported a deficit of $113,268,000, or 2.6 per cent. of its total expenditures at the close of its fiscal year.

The Irish Free State, which anticipated a deficit of almost $8,000,000, escaped with one of approximately half that amount, this qualifying the Free State to occupy a unique position in treasury matters.

Italy was short eight per cent. of the amount of its total expenditures at the end of the fiscal year, with a deficit of $75,000,000.

Portugal, Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Sweden, Finland, Poland, Roumania, Bulgaria and the Baltic states all ended their fiscal years with substantial deficits.

Exceptions proving the rule that the fiscal year, 1930-31, was a deficit year were Yugoslavia, Greece, Denmark, Norway, Switzerland, the Netherlands and Spain, all which ended the year with slight surpluses.

The position of public finances is a good indicator of the severity of the business depression, which is affecting all nations. Any one suspecting that Europe is exaggerating the seriousness of its fiscal condition will do well to grasp the obvious deduction in budget figures that show three-fourths of the European nations struggling with treasury troubles that are far more serious to them than the huge deficit incurred by the United States.

London reports that former King Alfonso, of Spain, has renounced his claim to the Spanish throne in favor of his third son, Don Juan de Bourbon. As we understand it, there is some question about the title which precludes Don Juan from taking possession forthwith.

A prominent Omaha builder told the annual gathering of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers, assembled in Washington, that a slump is a business spur; that depression develops efficiency. Develops efficiency? The building owner who meets the cost of upkeep and taxes these days is inclined to look upon himself as a genius!

It's not at all remarkable that forty deaths resulted from the heat in the Imperial valley over the week-end, but it's positively startling that California should permit the news of the two score deaths to get beyond her borders. Really, we very much fear that California's guardianship of her glorious weather's reputation is slipping.

"COME HERE, BIG BOY."

Editorial Opinion.

ANOTHER DICTATOR FALLS.

One of the few Latin American states which did not share in the orgy of revolutions last year, Chile finally has joined the ranks of the turbulent republics. President Dictator Carlos Ibanez has been far more successful than most of the heads of South American nations, ruling with relatively little difficulty since 1927.

But as economic depression became worse and fostered political discontent, the aristocratically governed country began to feel the pressure of public dissatisfaction, and Sunday the Ibanez government crashed. Chile is only technically a democracy, for a small handful of persons hold effective control in politics, and even this small minority has been subservient to the dictatorial President Ibanez.

Extreme economic crisis, however, leading to runs on the banks and disorders in the streets, gives a larger power to the mass of people who are content to let others rule when nitrate and copper bring good prices and prosperity is general. It is the disadvantage of aristocratic government that in a crisis it appears the enemy of the common man, rather than his servant. There is no reservoir of confidence as in a truly democratic state, where men know the government reflects their own decisions, good or bad.

With the resignation of Ibanez few of our neighbor states to the south remain untouched by the political repercussions of business depression. Cuba thus far has avoided open revolution by means of an army large enough for six Cubans, but the unrest there will not be stifled, and may bring a repetition of the Chilean revolt at any time. Venezuela has a dictator of thirty years' dictating, and seems content to go on until his death.

Mexico, though not without serious financial and religious troubles, appears to have reached a stable condition where revolution is unlikely. But of the nations which had revolutions and new governments last year Argentina and Brazil and Peru at least are little better satisfied than before and may conceivably try another coup d'état.—Cincinnati Enquirer, July 28.

People Hard To Please.

Many Atlanta citizens are trying to get rid of the mayor because he drank in France. Many Los Angeles citizens are trying to get rid of theirs because he didn't. Why not settle it by trading mayors?—Columbus Citizen.

Marion—Seen Through Local Eyes.

The following is the answer of one citizen to the question, "What Is Wrong with Marion?"—the first in the questionnaire circulated by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer to get a comprehensive insight into the community feeling regarding our home city, in the hope of arriving at a remedy for handicaps, if any, from which Marion may suffer. From day to day, answers of various citizens to the same question will be given publicly on this page.

"What is wrong with Marion?"

From the standpoint of the business man the thing that is wrong is not fundamentally with Marion, but with its people. The business affairs of the city are controlled by selfish interests. The founders and builders of our city had the welfare of not only their own interests at heart, but of the entire community. We have recently sold to disinterested parties and combines the heritage that was once our own. We have lost the home contact we once possessed when our industries and utilities were home-owned and the surplus of their earnings remained in our local financial institutions for the betterment and expansion of business in our fair city, when the interest and welfare of the worker was given first consideration in order that continuity of employment might prevail.

We lack and keenly feel the loss of the leadership we once had from those who have passed on, and their places have not been taken by men who have had the same spirit of community welfare at heart. In fact, we have all just been heading in the sunshine and living off of their efforts and results and putting nothing back for what we have received and simply dissipating the fruits of their toil and sacrifice.

Just of late years outside interests visualize what had been done by our former leaders in laying the foundation for a wonderful and prosperous city and after coming into our city and after a little investigation found the lack of cooperation, etc., that existed, so they then came into our midst and purchased from a disgruntled people what was our rightful heritage.

So what we really did and what is wrong is that we sold Marion. This all happened from lack of vision, appreciation and understanding. For all of these years we have been willing to take our living out of our fair city, but what have we put back? Money alone will not accomplish results. It takes individual sacrifice, effort, coupled with cooperation, with selfishness left out.

Chemicals and Tattoo Marks.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

At one time tattooing was very popular, particularly with sailors and soldiers. It is used in Europe as a means of furnishing to the police a method of identifying criminals. The difficulty in removing tattoo marks made it of great value for this purpose.

During the late war many soldiers amused themselves by getting tattooed. After the war many of these men became ashamed of the tattoo marks and desired to get rid of it.

Tattoo marks are removed with great difficulty. The tattoo painting is made by the injection of minute particles of lampblack, sometimes introduced with India ink. The introduction into the skin is made by a very fine needle and the mark can be removed only with great skill.

If you are one of these boys who, at some rash moment decided to be tattooed, I warn you against the use of any caustic chemicals or lotions. The removal of tattoo marks may be accomplished, but it should be done by a competent skin specialist.

The removal requires the application of a long and delicate process. At its best the final result is usually that of a number of white bluish spots which have replaced the blue spots of the tattooing. The process requires patience, but the results may be rather gratifying.

Occasionally, due to their great desire to remove these tattoo marks, men have resorted to the use of acids. These chemicals burn the skin and frequently leave large scars. Extensive burning of the skin with severe complications have been reported.

Unauthorized organizations have attempted to attract our ex-service men. They have held out guarantees of safe removal. Many charlatans are engaged in this practice, and I want my readers to be on guard against them.

If you are particularly anxious to have the tattoo removed, consult with your physician. He will refer you to a man trained in this particular work, a skin specialist who will protect you against results worse than the original trouble.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

Master Bio-Chemist.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

A surgeon, in one of his aspects, is a specialist who builds up imperfect and impaired bodies. He may desire a mechanism to enable a lame man to walk, and he may develop a method for grafting a skin on to the face. The bio-chemist has a somewhat similar function, although he functions in the field of chemistry instead of that of surgery.

The principal object of the bio-chemist is to discover new remedies for diseases. A pharmacopoeia lists hundreds, thousands, of drugs, their functions and curative properties. But this, after all, is only a small beginning. There are many diseases, ailments, afflictions of the human body for which helpful and curative treatments have not yet been found. The job of the bio-chemist is to discover new remedies for diseases, or to develop those which are only partially satisfactory. According to Haldane, a bio-chemist provides chemical splints for damaged organs.

J. B. S. Haldane, whose book, "Possible Worlds," and other notable prophecies of the future of civilization have attracted wide attention, has had a long and remarkable career as a bio-chemist. His father was famous as the author of "Mechanism, Life and Personality," and he himself has been experimenting on himself, either under his father's direction or voluntarily for his own purposes, ever since he was four years old. If he should ever write his autobiography, he might happily entitle it, as he once did one of his scientific papers, "On Being One's Own Rabbit."

J. B. S. Haldane declares that he is a "rotten observer," although he has been taking notes of experiments ever since he was eight years old. Like Aston, of Cambridge, the famous authority on isotopes, Haldane is remarkably ingenious in devising experiments which will clear up problems. Aston has extraordinary skill in devising complicated apparatus for obtaining important scientific results. Haldane was the subject for harmless experiments at the age of four, under his father's direction. At nine, he was going down coal mines, testing the breathability of the air. At another time, while quite young, he allowed himself to be shut up in an airtight box in order to get a qualitative record of expansion when the subject was breathing certain mixtures of gases.

Subjects for studying which have particularly attracted Haldane's attention are oxygen as a medicine, water-poisoning, and the disease of tetany. In the last case, wishing to liberate a quantity of hydrochloric acid in his system, he ate a lot of ammonium chloride. His blood lost ten per cent. of its volume, his weight dropped seven pounds in three days, and his liver behaved in a highly abnormal manner. The results of the experiment were the discovery of a cure for tetany, a disease from which children suffer. Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

When Stanton Was Arrested.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Mr. B. G. Smythe, who used to contribute interesting early recollections to the Advocate, of that paper of the arrest of Edwin M. Stanton of Newark, a few years ago told in an issue of Newark, N. J., in 1863. It was in the darkest hours of the Civil war and Secretary Stanton was on his way from Cincinnati to his home in Steubenville. He had to change cars at Newark and also to change stations, which were several squares apart, and not wishing to be recognized, he chose to walk from station to station, in the middle of the street.

M. D. Brooks was then deputy marshal, and being on the lookout for suspicious characters about the railroad stations, when he saw Stanton take the middle of the street and throw his wraps about his face and shoulders as if to conceal his features, followed him and placed him under arrest. When Mr. Stanton told the marshal who he was, Brooks was convinced that he had a character in hand who would look looking into.

He was about to take the secretary to jail and lock him up, when Mr. Stanton said he knew a lawyer in Newark named G. B. Smythe, and if the officer would take him to Mr. Smythe's house, Smythe, he was sure, would identify him. Being lawyers, they had practiced frequently in the same courts and were quite well acquainted. To this the marshal assented and accompanying his prisoner to the Smythe residence, he was soon assured by Smythe that he had the secretary of war in custody. With an apology he released his distinguished prisoner and the secretary continued his journey to Steubenville instead of spending the night in the Licking county jail.

Meeting Old Friends.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

Paris—By Mail—Bob Brinkerhoff, the New York illustrator, blew into town on the last lap of a swing around the globe, set off from Vancouver in March. He saw him he has watched gethar, sipped tea along "Bubbling Well" in Shanghai, talked to Gandhi and slept in a mosquito net.

Cutting across Place Victor Hugo I his familiar figure, let go a full-throated manche whoop, sailed my way gray skyward and screamed: "Hey, Brink, dropped a suit-case, cross-crossed with boyant labels, and we snapped into a on the ancient cobblestones.

Bob is a friend of long standing. Along H. T. Webster and Ray Rohn, we New York together, pitching camp in a up apartment far uptown in the 140's. We had slaved side by side for seven in the editorial rooms of the Cincinnati

In those first days in the metropolis I gay young buccanniers on the Journal. Money was so coy and reduced, we often cut each other's hair and the bleak days when we pussy-footed flat via the fire-escape to avoid a sentimental landlord.

After our chance meeting, I took him to Willis Morgan's pork chop emporium, filled him to his outstanding ears with chicken, corn fritters and yellow ice a la Americaine. My hospitality was to save neglecting the addition. One forgets hurry of travel.

Bob and I have explored Paris together, even to a skiff ride through the Seine, and as he was naturally fed up on "necking" we drifted to a sidewalk table obscure side street and gabbed outside. Then we paid a surprise visit to Harry Johnston in her Eugene Flacheret. She is the widow of the beloved of Johnston, author, former Sunday editor New York World, and intimate of O. For many years Hattie Bell and Bill John Ninety-First street home was the "Charm Mary Lamb's" of the literati. Few there are who have not been warmed by hospitality.

I was recalling to Mrs. Johnston of tea cups this late afternoon the privacy contacts 1—a struggling nobility so graciously welcomed—enjoyed at the table board. It was there I first met Miss Oppenheimer, Charles and Edith, Fannie Hurst, Isaac Marcossow, Willie Loon, Peter Kyne, Arthur Somers Roche, Roth, Carolyn Wells, Donn Byrne, Barton, Neysa McMen, Maclyn Arbuck, innumerable others, whose names for moment escape me, but who made their mark.

Poor old Maxims, perhaps one of the known restaurants to Americans in Paris, seems about to give up the struggle, evening at the lively homecoming bear but a single customer sitting in the shade red front. Four sidekick waiters gloomily at their posts. On a stool, circular bar a few steps inside sat a rather tarnished cocotte, puffing a cigar, reading the Paris Midi. I invited her to me in an apartment, which she did so customary alacrily. Departing a few minutes later, she observed: "You go, M'sieu! the way. Everybody come, stay a minute! push away. I, Clarette, am vanishing." The world chaos has touched forlorn Clarettes, too.

One of the unimportant, but unforgotten, eachings of Paris to me is that crepuscular of utter sidewalk and street desolation, 8 and 9 in the evening. The figures to be seen are the gaunt and bleary-mustached women who creep out from clammy depths with their white and black terry-like dogs—the dogs seen nowhere in Paris. It is the only hour of day when Paris presents a haunting melancholy.

Billy, incidentally, enjoyed his annual of the bearded proprietor of the Hotel Continental barber shop today. He pulls for the day a block away, remembering an atomizer that is always there for a romp. Rather their chairs and manicure girls, their during the five-minute high jinks.

I've been here just long enough to be irritated by French customs and mannerisms, but for the day concerns a story, the bath discovered this evening. It "Priere de faire couler l'eau froide avant de se baigner." In such an atrocious manner strikes me as a heck of a long-winded to say: "Please let the cold water run." And imagine "Pelouse Interdit" for "No passing." The sillies!—Copyright, 1931, Naught Syndicate, Inc.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, July 29—Back in 1919 Hoover, whose fame at that time was that he had saved millions from starving, set off a relief expedition into Russia.

He needed a man who had knowledge of the Russian language and call for volunteers brought to him a tall, black-headed, swarthy person by the name of Kosta Boris.

Hoover was impressed with him from the start, included him in his party as his personal servant.

Boris accompanied Hoover into Russia when the mission had been concluded, returned with him to the United States. He remained Hoover's employ as his valet.

Years passed and Herbert Hoover became President of the United States. With the White House went Boris to serve its executive mansion as valet to the President.

Boris, still solidly in appearance—he is in the World war—his coal-black hair, a bit about the temples, his clothing immaculate and in perfect taste, looks like the conventional valet.

He accompanies the President on trips of Washington and abroad, usually is in for him in the party. He rides either in cars containing secret service men or papermen, among whom he is a general favorite.

Boris misses nothing. A great baseball if Hoover attends a game in the capital somehow manages to be included in the trip. If a state function is in progress at the White House, Boris may be observed standing a column discreetly watching what is taking place.

He lives at the White House in a room on the top floor. He drives his own small to one of the Washington parks frequented a round of golf.

When the President's grandchildren, F. Ann and Herbert III—were staying at the executive mansion, Boris acted as their guard.

With the two children he was a great favorite. It was his mission to see to his care around the White House, and to them address Boris as "Uncle Charlie."

Modest, at all times discreet, no word is drawn from him about his duties as to the President. To Boris those are not to be discussed.

To the incessant kidding to which he is subjected by newspapermen, who cover the White House and accompany the President everywhere, Boris pays little heed. Times he gets a bit serious, but is quick to smile at the being good.

He is said to be a general favorite in the Hoover household.

Three chemical experts from Franklin county, D. B. Boyd, H. O. Hall and W. E. Cole, met with members of Grand Prairie grange No. 2270 last night to discuss methods of destroying Canadian thistle.

The Grand Prairie orchestra of 32 pieces went to Canada yesterday via Detroit, returning last night, and on a short boat ride, furnished the music.

Elmer Myers, active in grange work, was reported seriously ill at his farm home. The lecture hour which included the Canadian thistle discussions, was in charge of Mrs. Dwight Myers. A song by the grange opened the program followed by two readings by Enid Hickman and Lillian Rish.

Mrs. Ralph Lucas, Mrs. Elmer Dean and Mrs. Fred Zimmermann were appointed a refreshments committee for the next meeting in two weeks at which time the Martel grange degree team will confer the third and fourth degrees on a class of candidates.

"It so happens
I don't smoke..."

BUT I've noticed recently that more of my girl friends are smoking CHESTERFIELDS, and I asked why.

"One of them said that CHESTERFIELDS really are milder and taste better—that there is nothing strong or sharp or bitter about them.

"Another one spoke up and said that she too liked the taste of CHESTERFIELDS; but that she was especially pleased with the package—so neat and attractive. Chesterfields—she added—were made right—properly filled—and burn evenly; and she thought possibly they were using a better cigarette paper.

"Still another one agreed with all we'd said. She'd been smoking CHESTERFIELDS for a long, long time, and had always liked them; but she also liked the way they were advertised. The advertising seemed to her to be the truth and the whole truth—it wasn't always knocking somebody or something!"

money and you went shinning up the fire escape. What did you do after that?"

"I got over to Jersey. I became a Gypsy and tell fortunes. I make money enough to take me back to Spain."

"You didn't care what happened to me, did you?"

"Yes. I ask you about you all round. At last I am told you are in New Orleans, so I say to myself, 'I can sail for Spain from there and see him too.' ... Was that your wife, Spike—that curly head—one passing cigarette? I never believe you would marry, Mister Divitt. I never believe any woman can make you forget yourself enough."

"She is pretty like a curly doll and she fix up this place, they say. Very diffunt from our place in Philly—si? Yes, I think about you, or I would not have come here to sail for Spain. And eef you need me I would not have sail for Spain. I would have stay right here, like I did anyhow, like I must after I lose my money to you. I ought know better than play roulette. But I tell myself I know the trick. 'Tricks are not the same,' said Divitt, watching her."

It was not protestations of devotion that he wished from the marquisa, but merely to remind her of certain cards he held. ... How old was she now—47? 49? ... She had changed somewhat since that evening five years before when he had watched her vanish up the fire-escape.

In her role of enchantress, she had always been partial to red. He had rather liked it himself in those days. Molly had given him a subtle sense in decoration and in women's clothes.

Perhaps it was with this sense that he now saw the marquisa. Perhaps she had not really changed.

Yes, she was fatter, bulbous was the word. And tobacco was making her teeth ugly, and her fingers. Yet she was not alone in these disfigurements, would not be impaired for the thing he had in mind.

The marquisa was talking. She had a pretty blurring accent, like Juanita's.

"When you say that night you do not need me and will not talk, I go back to palm-reading. It is not so good here as in New Jersey. There are too many."

"So you've been reading palms the month you've been here."

Odd, that. She had been reading palms that first time he had seen her in the little back-street hotel in Philadelphia, reading them in the lobby for fun; telling people all sorts of things about the future, their wives, husbands and affluities.

Divitt had not had his hand read, but he had stood watching the marquisa in her wine-colored dress and great Moorish earrings, waiting until the crowd withdrew to the dining room. He had talked with her then, discovering that her powers of divination had not served to avert calamities in her own

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

—BY JUDD M. LEWIS—

WEDNESDAY. When me and Jubilee woke up I didn't feel so smart as I might have. I bet Ebbie got a licking for fighting a girl when anyone would have thought Feeble was a boy with my pants on and her hobbled hair up under her hat, and that wasn't giving him a square deal. I got out of bed and let Jubilee down into a red-hot world by the rope in his teeth, and then I went down and put on my short britches and went down and got the milkpail and went out to milk the cow and her dotter, and the bunch were nearly all there. And when I had got the milking done and had went in to strain the milk and feed my face Feeble and Maggie and Yonnis were there, and Feeble had taken off my clothes and had on her own clothes so she was a girl again, and I told her she was a better looking girl than she was a boy.

I asked her if she wanted to be a prize fighter yet, and she said, "No, I think a woman's place is in the home. But you can't say I didn't try." I said she certainly tried all right. Then I fed my face and we started out with the cows, and we didn't have to go looking for the kid that time. He was laying for us at his corner. And when we came up and stopped and we all grinned at him and he grinned back he took off his hat to Feeble and said, "I am sorry I punched you one. I didn't know you were a girl. You don't look like one."

Then Feeble asked him if she looked like a boy and he said she didn't. Then she asked him what she did look like, and he said she didn't look like anything he had ever seen so he didn't know, unless it was the missing link or something. Then we all gave Feeble the laugh. Then the fella put on his cap and stepped up to me and said, "What are you laughing at, you munks ophan?" When he said that I jammed loose at him and mimed and then he shot a right and left at me but I moved my head out of their way but I could hear them whistle when they went past my ears. Then I bang up my patent blow and hung it up his chin, but just when it landed I got his right on my nose and the whole world seemed to explode right in my face, and the next thing I knew we were hanging onto each other and punching, and then I felt something wet on my lip and I knowed my nose was bleeding, so I got both arms around his neck and rubbed the blood in his hair, and then I pushed him away from me and was all ret to let him have all I had, but just then something like a wildcat jumped onto me from behind and hit me with both hands and feet at once. And it was Feeble, and she said "Don't you dare to hit him again, you bully!" When I seen who it was I began to laugh, and then Feeble started laughing, and we looked at Ebbie and he began to grin, and then the whole bunch hollered. He went to the pasture and went swimming with us. He is a good swimmer.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

The Arrival of Dicky Interrupts Mother Graham's Comments.

A S if his mother's words had power to summon him, Dicky put his head in at the open door just as she had finished asking me reproachfully. But I am wondering Margaret what your husband will say to your preferring your professional work to the care of my sick child? I had thought my mother-in-law's strictures were the proverbial last straws, but this sudden appearance of my husband the first time I had seen him since he had ushered Philip Veritzen out of the house the night before, coupled with the fact that his mother's query might have an unpleasant answer, completely vanquished me. I caught my lower lip between my teeth and almost but it through as I waited for what he might say.

"Oh, hello there," he said as he saw me. "I've been looking for you everywhere. What do you think of the baby?"

Dicky's Attitude

There was no slightest hint of censure in his voice. Nothing but the comradeship which in the strangest tie in marriage and I felt the tension of my nerves lessening at his word.

"She seems to be in wonderful condition," I said, "come over here and look at her."

He caught my hand in his as we crossed the room, a little habit of his most dear to me.

Hand in hand we looked down upon our baby still wiggling her toes and fingers in the fashion of healthy babies over since Eve was given the accolade of motherhood. "Little darling!" Dicky murmured huskily. "But I say Madge, what's the matter with her?"

His tone was so terrified that I could not help being a bit anxious myself although I knew the reason for the sudden screwing up of the baby's face and the tiny wail she sent out.

"Don't worry," Katherine interposed promptly. "It's only hunger. She's almost starved the precious. She's had practically no food since ten o'clock last night. But she's perfectly all right. If you don't mind leaving her to me for a little while I'll get her ready for her feeding and her nap."

The Unexpected

"All right, you're the doctor, Dicky," said heartily. "Come on, Madge! There's nothing for you to do here, and I want to show you how fifty those two acts were copied. I don't believe there's a single comma misplaced. Besides, I want a look at the third act. I'd been raving over it. I'd known the stuff you were planning. I'm here to tell you I'd have put you in a strait jacket and locked you up. A whole act dictated in a night. But so long, as it's finished, and you don't appear to be any the worse for wear, I'm free to confess I'm simply crazy to see what you turned out. Some wife, I've got, Station R. G. broadcasting."

He thrust out his chest, pouter pigeon fashion, as he caught my arm and rushed me to the door. There was genuine pride in his voice and camaraderie. Some where, sometime, since I had last seen him, he had been buried his deep jealous resentment of my work because of Philip Veritzen's connection with it.

I could not resist a furtive glance at my mother-in-law from beneath

THREE CALIFORNIANS REMAIN IN TOURNAMENT

John Doe Rules Favorite in Today's Match with Jack Tidball.

By The Associated Press. SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 20.—Three Californians and a southerner filled the semi-final brackets of men's singles in the forty-fourth annual Seabright Invitation tennis tournament today.

John Hope Doe, the national champion, who learned his tennis in Santa Monica although he now lives in Newark, N. J., Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena and Jack Tidball of Los Angeles, were the Californians. The lone southerner was Cliff Sutter of New Orleans.

Although carried to three sets by Bryant Grant Jr. of Atlanta yesterday, Doe ruled a slight favorite over Tidball, 18-year-old University of California sophomore today. The Vines-Sutter match was regarded as something of a toss up.

The women's singles had reached the quarter-final round with Miss Helen Willis Moody of San Francisco, and Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Calif., favored to meet in the finals. Mrs. Moody defeated Virginia Rice of Boston yesterday, 6-0, 6-1, while Miss Jacobs eliminated Elaine Phillips of Boston, 6-0, 7-5. Pairings today pitted Miss Moody against Baroness Giacomo Levi of New York, Miss Jacobs against Mae Ceurovorat of Wichita, Kas.

CALVARY SKIDS TO THIRD POSITION BY LOSING TO EPWORTH

the Lutherans the only run they could get against the second place Epworth Bishops yesterday. Dutch Thibault drove one between left and center for the circuit clutch.

There never was much doubt as to who was going to win this ball game after the first inning. The first five men to face Koehensberger, catcher safe hits, bringing in a pair of runs. Sloppy base running cost another possible pair of runners in the first frame. Errors gave the Bishops an opportunity to bring in several more runs in the game. Harold Henry snapped out of a long batting slump by banging out a home run in his only official time at bat.

Seniors Drop Another. Trinity Baptist rang up another victory at the expense of the oft-beaten Epworth Seniors, keeping the latter team securely lodged in a tie with the Lutherans for last place and allowing Trinity to hold its place in the first division. The Baptists had little difficulty taking the Epworth nine into camp. Nine hits rattled off the Baptist war clubs while the Seniors could collect but four bingles. A three-run rally in the second gave the losers all of their runs while Trinity scattered its scoring through three stanzas. Batteries and scores:

with Calvary in third place. The Epworth Bishops still retain a slender grip on the runner-up post. Trinity Baptist completes the list of first division entries.

Lee Street Loses. Lee Street Presbyterians were given another setback yesterday by the Irish finishing on the short end of a 12-5 score.

Carl Fendley hurled six of the seven innings for Lee Street. Fendley was hit fairly hard but poor support cost him a chance to beat the Irish. H. Richards took the mound in the final frame.

If someone doesn't remove the pennant bug from the person of these Epworth No. 1 players within a short time there is likely to be a general upheaval of the standings in the circuit next Tuesday. John Clark piloted his Methodists to a 3-0 victory over Calvary. Evangelical yesterday and although he failed to move up in the standings yesterday he put his team in a position to move up a long ways on short notice. Until someone now in the first division is defeated he hasn't a chance to get into the select four but the first division teams meet each other next week so the process of elimination is certain to be sudden and effective.

Errors Are Costly. Infield errors gave Epworth No. 1 their big opportunity yesterday. Bob Gamble hurled a good game for the winners but wasn't getting anywhere in particular until the sixth inning because his mates couldn't get any runs for him. Holding the other team scoreless is all well and good but there is no mention made in any record books of a team having won a game without collecting a few scores.

Perhaps all things come to him who waits. Gamble waited until the sixth frame and then he got his runs. Two successive infield errors put Huntsman and Hinklin on the sacks and Everett (Himself) Miller came through with a timely double that cleared the sacks and gave the Methodists the lead. These two, added to one run in the first, were all that the winners could get. It was all they needed. Gamble set the losers down easily in the last two frames. Hits were even off the two pitchers, Gamble allowing eight and Gruber being nipped for the same number.

A good two base hit that was allowed to go for a home run gave

Beats U. S. Star

Fred Perry, brilliant young star of England surprised the tennis world in general and Sydney Wood of the United States in particular when he blasted his way to a victory over the latter in the inter-zone finals of the Davis Cup matches. His victory started the American entries on their way to elimination from the tournament, the first time since 1919 the U. S. team never got as far as the challenge round finals. England won three matches to two.

ATHLETICS RALLY TO GIVE "LEFTY" GROVE HIS 21ST VICTORY

Cleveland Again Walloped by Washington 8-1; Cards Win Close Game.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer.
A couple rising stars of the American league may or may not surpass the records they seem to be aiming at, but while Earl Webb of the Boston Red Sox and Ben Chapman of the New York Yankees are shooting for new marks in two base hit, and stolen bases they are proving very helpful to their teams.

Webb clouted two doubles yesterday to bring his total for the season up to 47. He is 17 short of the major league record set by George Burns in 1906. To yesterday's par, Webb added two singles for a perfect day at bat which made him one of the big factors in Boston's 8 to 1 triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

Chapman Steals No. 41. Stolen base No. 41 by Chapman was of little assistance to the Yanks yesterday when the Chicago White Sox staged an eighth inning upping that drove three Yankees pitchers to cover, netted eleven runs and won the game 14 to 12 after the Yanks had gained a 12-3 lead. Chapman is far behind the league record, but has stolen more bases than any player in either circuit in five years.

Al Simmons was the big part of the show at Philadelphia where the Athletics maintained their eleven game lead over Washington by downing St. Louis, 6 to 3. Simmons started the winning rally in the eighth with his fifteenth homer of the season and gave Bob Grove, who had relieved Earnshaw, his twenty-first pitching victory.

In a like manner, Joe Cronin of Washington to the aid of Sad Sam Jones, while Jones pitched a six hit game against Cleveland, Cronin helped bring the count up to 8 to 1 by clearing the bases with a triple in the fifth inning.

Cardinals Win 1-0. The Boston Braves, groggy but game, put up another great battle against the St. Louis Cardinals, leaders of the National league, but lost by a 1 to 0 count.

Aided by some runs by Blair and Hemaley the Chicago Cubs held second place by beating the Phillies 6 to 3. "Smiley" Root outpitched Phil Collins. The New York Giants clung to their place a half-game behind by downing the Pittsburgh Pirates 6 to 2 on a series of late rallies.

Brooklyn dropped a game behind its three rivals as the Cincinnati Reds took a 5 to 4 decision with a ninth inning rally. Just after the Roodins had tied the score, Nick Culp doubled, and Tony Cuccinello, who batted in three runs, singled him home.

These athletic lassies will cavort on the Lincoln park diamond Sunday afternoon against Morral of the Rural Community league.

Hollywood Girls Diamond Squad Plays Here Sunday

Baseball fans will be treated to an athletic novelty Sunday afternoon at Lincoln park when the Hollywood Movie Stars' girls' baseball team meets Morral of the Rural Community league in the second game of a double header diamond ball. (This is not recreation baseball.)

Composed of 18 of the allegedly best girl baseball players in the country the Hollywood girls have been touring this district some time, meeting teams booked as the best in their respective areas. So far this year the record handed out by their promoters shows a figure of 31 games won of 72 played.

Although there may be some reasons for so doing other than those made public the fact remains that a large number of persons have been flocking to the various ball parks to see these girls cavort on the diamond. Perhaps spectators are more anxious to witness the sight of 18 females roaming the diamond than they are of seeing an actual baseball game. Whatever the reason it is expected that Lincoln park will see a larger than usual number of spectators lining the grandstand Sunday.

Morral will meet Columbus Hillards in a Rural Community league game in the first half of the two twin program. The first game is billed to commence at 1 p. m. with the second expected to get under way about 3:30.

Here's an unusual picture of an inverted pyramid of a train as it rests at the bottom of a cut after crashing through a trestle near Gray Eagle, Calif. Fifty men were in the locomotive and coach when it took the unexpected dive.

BURIAL AT KENTON

Former Resident of Mt. Victory Dies in Indiana.

MT. VICTORY, July 29—Word has been received here of the death of Mrs. C. Keller Wallace, 47, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Simpson of this place, which occurred Monday at her home in Mount, Ind. ## ATTEND PARTY

Social Affairs Honors Employee of Telephone Company

UPPER SANDUSKY, July 29—Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Myers of this city attended a surprise at Findlay last night, in honor of A. C. ## HUDSON with SELECTIVE FREE WHEELING

Runs Like a Top!

With Selective Free Wheeling you free wheel in all forward speeds. You shift gears silently. You travel through traffic with less need to use the clutch and with less gear shifting. You float over rough crossings. It gives a performance more enjoyable than anything you have ever experienced.

That's how thousands of owners of older Hudsons describe their first ride in the Greater Hudson Eight.

They speak of this Hudson as the smoothest thing on wheels. They like the way its powerful motor causes hills to vanish and the way it purrs along so swiftly, so sweetly. Its nimble getaway, its silence and the way it floats over rough crossings is so luxuriously different that all praise it.

Because they know what Hudson can do, they recognize its impressive value. They compare its size and looks, comfort and performance, cost and economy with previous Hudsons and with other cars they know. It is to their advantage to make such contrasts. It is to the Greater Hudson Eight's advantage, too.

Won't you try the Greater Hudson Eight with Selective Free Wheeling? Hudson gives you all anyone could want in motor car luxury—and at a great saving in price.

Is He Happy? Ask Him!

D. E. Shields of 530 E. George-st decided that he would take Old Man Depression on in a Free-For-All, Catch-As-Catch-Can, and May-the-Best-Man-Win tussle. To start the battle, he placed two advertisements in the Classified Section of The Star, one in the Business Service column soliciting paperhanging and painting, the other in the Situation Wanted column seeking farm work. The Business Service ad in three weeks time has brought Mr. Shields plenty of work. He has papered 10 single rooms and has obtained an order to paint a nine-room house, inside and out.

The Situation Wanted ad brought Mr. Shields three offers of farm work. Now, the funny part about this story is that Mr. Shields has been kept so busy with his Want Ad results that he has completely lost track of Old Man Depression and the battle has been postponed indefinitely.

If you, too, are ready to tackle Old Man Depression, just advertise. Three lines, six times, costs only $1.08.

Two Face Charges After Fight Over Vegetables

W. D. Street, 31, of 344 Labourette street, is free on $500 bond and Earl Collins, 43, of 330 First avenue, is in city jail following an altercation last night in which Street accused children of Collins of taking vegetables from his garden.

Street told police that he found a Collins boy pulling onions in his garden last night. When Street remonstrated with Collins, the latter struck him over the head with a club, he told police who were called to the Collins residence last night to settle an altercation.

Both men were arrested but Street was later released on bond for his appearance in court. An affidavit has been laid against the Collins boy in juvenile court.

AVOID "ASH-TRAY" BREATH

SMOKE PURE-TOBACCO OLD GOLDS

Laboratory tests show why OLD GOLDS do not taint the breath and clothing with a clinging and unpleasant odor.

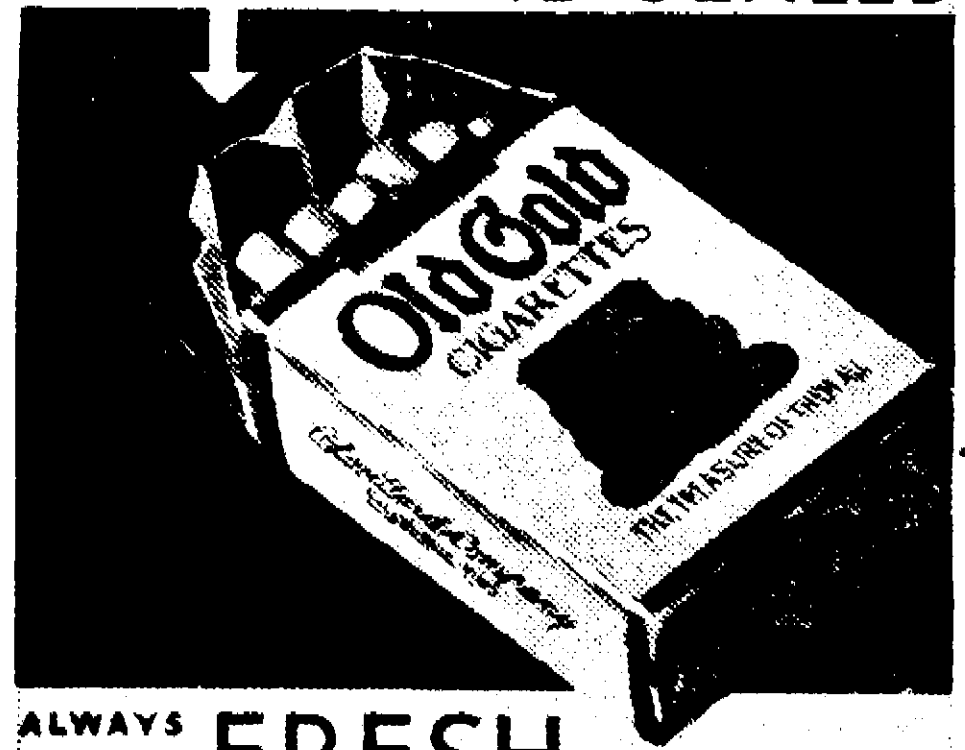

The cool, blue-white smoke of an OLD GOLD contains no greasy, artificial flavors that scent up the room and person.

For OLD GOLD is a Nature-flavored cigarette. Made of pure, clean, sun-ripened tobacco... so mellow and fragrant it needs no flavor "disguises."

"Keep Kissable with OLD GOLDS" is not a mere claim. It is a real and pleasant fact, as millions of OLD GOLD smokers know. If you'll truly try them, you'll know so, too.
